Brinkley's AP® American History UPDATED 15th edition correlation to KEY CONCEPTS & SUPPORTING CONCEPTS

HISTORICAL PERIODS, KEY CONCEPTS, SUPPORTING CONCEPTS, AND HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT	KEY PAGES IN BRINKLEY
PERIOD 1: 1491–1607
Key Concept 1.1 : As native populations migrated and settled across the vast expanse of North they developed distinct and increasingly complex societies by adapting to and transforming the environments.
1.1.1. Different native societies adapted to and transformed their environments through innovations in agriculture, resource use, and social structure. (MIG-2) (GEO-1)	3-6
A. The spread of maize cultivation from present-day Mexico northward into the present-day American Southwest and beyond supported economic development, settlement, advanced irrigation, and social diversification among societies.	3-6
B. Societies responded to the aridity of the Great Basin and the grasslands of the western Great Plains by developing largely mobile lifestyles.	5
C. In the Northeast, the Mississippi River Valley, and along the Atlantic seaboard some societies developed mixed agricultural and hunter-gatherer economies that favored the development of permanent villages.	5-6
D. Societies in the Northwest and present-day California supported themselves by hunting and gathering, and in some areas developed settled communities supported by the vast resources of the ocean.	4-5
Key Concept 1.2: Contact among Europeans, Native Americans, and Africans resulted in the Cand significant social, cultural, and political changes on both sides of the Atlantic Ocean.	Columbian Exchange
1.2.1. European expansion into the Western Hemisphere generated intense social, religious, political, and economic competition and changes within European societies. (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) (WOR-1.0)	8-17, 19, 21-27, 30-32, 42
A. European nations' efforts to explore and conquer the New World stemmed from a search for new sources of wealth, economic and military competition, and a desire to spread Christianity.	8-17, 21-27, 29-30
B. The Columbian Exchange brought new crops to Europe from the Americas, stimulating European population growth, and new sources of mineral wealth, which facilitated the European shift from feudalism to capitalism.	15, 19, 22-23, 42
C. Improvements in maritime technology and more organized methods for conducting international trade, such as joint-stock companies, helped drive changes to economies in Europe and the Americas.	9, 22-23, 30, 31- 32
1.2.Il. The Columbian Exchange and development of the Spanish Empire in the Western Hemisphere resulted in extensive demographic, economic, and social changes. (MIG-1.0) (WXT-1.0) (GEO-1.0)	12, 14, 17-21
A. Spanish exploration and conquest of the Americas were accompanied and furthered by widespread deadly epidemics that devastated native populations and by the introduction of crops and animals not found in the Americas.	12,14,17,18-19
B. In the encomienda system, Spanish colonial economies marshaled Native American labor to support plantation-based agriculture and extract precious metals and other resources.	17,20
C. European traders partnered with some West African groups who practiced slavery to forcibly extract slave labor for the Americas. The Spanish imported enslaved Africans to labor in plantation agriculture and mining.	20, 21
D. The Spanish developed a caste system that incorporated, and carefully defined the status of, the diverse population of Europeans, Africans, and Native Americans in their empire.	19-20, 21
1.2.III. In their interactions, Europeans and Native Americans asserted divergent worldviews regarding issues such as religion, gender roles, family, land use, and power. (CUL-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) (WOR-1.0)	12, 14, 17, 19, 28- 31, 38-39, 42, 46-

	47
A. Mutual misunderstandings between Europeans and Native Americans often defined the	12, 14, 17, 19, 28-early years of interaction and trade as each group sought to make sense of the other. Over	29, 30-31, 38-39, time, Europeans and Native Americans adopted some useful aspects of each other's culture.	42, 47
B. As European encroachments on Native Americans' lands and demands on their labor	12, 14, 17, 30-31, increased, native peoples sought to defend and maintain their political sovereignty, economic	38, 46-48 prosperity, religious beliefs, and concepts of gender relations through diplomatic negotiations and military resistance.
C. Extended contact with Native Americans and Africans fostered a debate among European	14, 19, 28-30 religious and political leaders about how non-Europeans should be treated, as well as evolving religious, cultural, and racial justifications for the subjugation of Africans and Native Americans.

PERIOD 2: 1607-1754

Key Concept 2.1: Europeans developed a variety of colonization and migration patterns, influenced by different imperial goals, cultures, and the varied North American environments where they settled, and they competed with each other and American Indians for resources.

2.1.1. Spanish, French, Dutch, and British colonizers had different economic and imperial goals involving land and labor that shaped the social and political development of their colonies as well as their relationships with native populations. (MIG-1.0) (WOR-1.0)	15, 17-20, 25, 27, 29-30, 35-40, 41- 47, 56-57, 60, 101-102
A. Spanish efforts to extract wealth from the land led them to develop institutions based on subjugating native populations, converting them to Christianity, and incorporating them, along with enslaved and free Africans, into the Spanish colonial society.	15, 17-20, 56-57,
B. French and Dutch colonial efforts involved relatively few Europeans and relied on trade alliances and intermarriage with American Indians to build economic and diplomatic relationships and acquire furs and other products for export to Europe.	29-30, 60, 101- 102
C. English colonization efforts attracted a comparatively large number of male and female British migrants, as well as other European migrants, all of whom sought social mobility, economic prosperity, religious freedom, and improved living conditions. These colonists focused on agriculture and settled on land taken from Native Americans, from whom they lived separately.	25, 27, 29, 35-40, 41-47
2.1.II. In the 17th century, early British colonies developed along the Atlantic coast, with regional differences that reflected various environmental, economic, cultural, and demographic factors. (NAT-1.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (GEO-1.0)	36, 38, 41-45, 50- 56, 59-60, 66-68, 74-80, 83-88, 95- 96, 99-100
A. The Chesapeake and North Carolina colonies grew prosperous exporting tobacco — a labor-intensive product initially cultivated by white, mostly male indentured servants and later by enslaved Africans.	36, 38, 50, 66-68, 77-78
B. The New England colonies, initially settled by Puritans, developed around small towns with family farms and achieved a thriving mixed economy of agriculture and commerce.	41-45, 78-80, 85- 86
C. The middle colonies supported a flourishing export economy based on cereal crops and attracted a broad range of European migrants, leading to societies with greater cultural, ethnic, and religious diversity and tolerance.	50-53, 74-76, 87- 88
D. The colonies of the southernmost Atlantic coast and the British West Indies used long growing seasons to develop plantation economies based on exporting staple crops. They depended on the labor of enslaved Africans, who often constituted the majority of the population in these areas and developed their own forms of cultural and religious autonomy.	50-51, 54-56, 59- 60, 77-78, 83-85
E. Distance and Britain's initially lax attention led to the colonies creating self-governing institutions that were unusually democratic for the era. The New England colonies based power in participatory town meetings, which in turn elected members to their colonial legislatures; in the Southern colonies, elite planters exercised local authority and also dominated the elected assemblies.	42, 43, 49, 52, 53, 83, 95-96, 99-100
2.1.III. Competition over resources between European rivals and American Indians encouraged industry and trade and led to conflict in the Americas. (WXT-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (WOR-1.0)	42, 46-49, 56-57, 60-63, 72-74, 76- 78, 80-82, 87-88,

	101-102
A. An Atlantic economy developed in which goods, as well as enslaved Africans and American Indians, were exchanged between Europe, Africa, and the Americas through extensive trade networks. European colonial economies focused on acquiring, producing, and exporting	72-74, 76-78, 80- 82, 87-88
commodities that were valued in Europe and gaining new sources of labor. B. Continuing trade with Europeans increased the flow of goods in and out of American Indian communities, stimulating cultural and economic changes and spreading epidemic diseases that caused radical demographic shifts.	42, 46-48, 56-57, 60, 101-102
C. Interactions between European rivals and American Indian populations fostered both accommodation and conflict. French, Dutch, British, and Spanish colonies allied with and armed American Indian groups, who frequently sought alliances with Europeans against	47-48, 56-57, 60, 101-102
other Indian groups. D. The goals and interests of European leaders and colonists at times diverged, leading to a growing mistrust on both sides of the Atlantic. Colonists, especially in British North America, expressed dissatisfaction over issues including territorial settlements, frontier defense, self-rule, and trade.	60-63, 80-81
E. British conflicts with American Indians over land, resources, and political boundaries led to military confrontations, such as Metacom's War (King Philip's War) in New England.	46-49
F. American Indian resistance to Spanish colonizing efforts in North America, particularly after the Pueblo Revolt, led to Spanish accommodation of some aspects of American Indian culture in the Southwest.	56-57
Key Concept 2.2: The British colonies participated in political, social, cultural, and economic e Britain that encouraged both stronger bonds with Britain and resistance to Britain's control.	exchanges with Great
2.2.1. Transatlantic commercial, religious, philosophical, and political exchanges led residents of the British colonies to evolve in their political and cultural attitudes as they became increasingly tied to Britain and one another. (NAT-1.0) (POL-1.0) (WXT-2.0) (CUL-1.0) (CUL-2.0)	42, 43, 52, 53, 60- 63, 81-82, 87-96, 99-100, 102-106
A. The presence of different European religious and ethnic groups contributed to a significant degree of pluralism and intellectual exchange, which were later enhanced by the first Great Awakening and the spread of European Enlightenment ideas.	89-95
B. The British colonies experienced a gradual Anglicization over time, developing autonomous political communities based on English models with influence from intercolonial commercial ties, the emergence of a trans-Atlantic print culture, and the spread of Protestant evangelicalism.	42, 43, 52, 53, 60- 63, 81-82, 87-88, 90-91, 92-94
C. The British government increasingly attempted to incorporate its North American colonies into a coherent, hierarchical, and imperial structure in order to pursue mercantilist economic aims, but conflicts with colonists and American Indians led to erratic enforcement of imperial policies.	60-63, 99-100, 102-106
D. Colonists' resistance to imperial control drew on local experiences of self-government, evolving ideas of liberty, the political thought of the Enlightenment, greater religious independence and diversity, and an ideology critical of perceived corruption in the imperial	60-62, 91-92, 95- 96, 99-100
2.2.II. Like other European empires in the Americas that participated in the Atlantic slave trade, the English colonies developed a system of slavery that reflected the specific economic, demographic, and geographic characteristics of those colonies. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) (WOR-1.0)	39, 54-56, 71-74, 76-78, 83-85
A. All the British colonies participated to varying degrees in the Atlantic slave trade due to the abundance of land and a growing European demand for colonial goods, as well as a shortage of indentured servants. Small New England farms used relatively few enslaved laborers, all port cities held significant minorities of enslaved people, and the emerging plantation systems of the Chesapeake and the southernmost Atlantic coast had large numbers of enslaved workers, while the great majority of enslaved Africans were sent to the West Indies.	39, 54-55, 71-74, 76, 77-78, 83-85
B. As chattel slavery became the dominant labor system in many southern colonies, new laws created a strict racial system that prohibited interracial relationships and defined the descendants of African American mothers as black and enslaved in perpetuity.	55-56, 73, 74
C. Africans developed both overt and covert means to resist the dehumanizing aspects of	55-56, 84-85 slavery and maintain their family and gender systems, culture, and religion.

PERIOD 3. 1734-1600
Key Concept 3.1 : British attempts to assert tighter control over its North American colonies a resolve to pursue self-government led to a colonial independence movement and the Revolution
3.1.1. The competition among the British, French, and American Indians for economic	101-110 and political advantage in North America culminated in the Seven years' War (the French and Indian War), in which Britain defeated France and allied American Indians.
(MIG-2.0) (WOR-1.0)	101 107
A. Colonial rivalry intensified between Britain and France in the mid-18th century, as the	101-106 growing population of the British colonies expanded into the interior of North America, threatening French–Indian trade networks and American Indian autonomy. B. Britain achieved a major expansion of its territorial holdings by defeating the French, but	106-109
at tremendous expense, setting the stage for imperial efforts to raise revenue and consolidate	100-109 control over the colonies.
C. After the British victory, imperial officials' attempts to prevent colonists from moving	109-110
westward generated colonial opposition, while native groups sought to both continue trading	107-110 with Europeans and resist the encroachments of colonists on tribal lands.
3.1.II. The desire of many colonists to assert ideals of self-government in the face of	110-115, 117-renewed British imperial efforts led to a colonial independence movement and war with	119, 122-124,
Britain. (NAT-1.0) (POL-2.0) (WOR-1.0)	129-133, 135-
211cmm (1.111 110) (1.02 210) (11.01 110)	•
	140, 142-143,
A 701 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	146-149
A. The imperial struggles of the mid-18th century, as well as new British efforts to collect	110-115, 118-119 taxes without direct colonial representation or consent and to assert imperial authority in the colonies, began to unite the colonists against perceived and real constraints on their economic activities and political rights.	447440 422424
B. Colonial leaders based their calls for resistance to Britain on arguments about the rights of	117-118, 122-124
British subjects, the rights of the individual, local traditions of self-rule, and the ideas of the Enlightenment.	129-131
C. The effort for American independence was energized by colonial leaders such as Benjamin	110 110 177
Franklin, as well as by popular movements that included the political activism of laborers,	118-119, 122, artisans, and women.	130-131, 140, 146-149
D. In the face of economic shortages and the British military occupation of some regions, men and women mobilized in large numbers to provide financial and material support to the	119, 122, 140,
Patriot movement.	149
E. Despite considerable loyalist opposition, as well as Great Britain's apparently	131-133, 135-138 overwhelming military and financial advantages, the Patriot cause succeeded because of the	139-140, 142-143
actions of colonial militias and the Continental Army, George Washington's military	137-140, 142-143 leadership, the colonists' ideological commitment and resilience, and assistance sent by European allies.
Key Concept 3.2: The American Revolution's democratic and republican ideals inspired new e	xperiments with different forms of government.	1
3.2.1. The ideals that inspired the revolutionary cause reflected new beliefs about	130-131, 144-politics, religion, and society that had been developing over the course of the 18th	146, 150-153, century. (NAT-1.0) (CUL-1.0) (CUL-3.0)	166-167, 172, A5-
	A6
A Enlightenment ideas and philosophy inspired many American political thinkons to
A. Enlightenment ideas and philosophy inspired many American political thinkers to	130-131,144-145
emphasize individual talent over hereditary privilege, while religion strengthened Americans' view of themselves as a people blessed with liberty	150 view of themselves as a people blessed with liberty. B. The colonists' belief in the superiority of republican forms of government based on the	120 121 15 14 natural rights of the people found expression in Thomas Paine's Common Sense and the	130-131, A5-A6, Declaration of Independence. The ideas in these documents resonated throughout American	150 history, shaping Americans' understanding of the ideals on which the nation was based.
C. During and after the American Revolution, an increased awareness of inequalities in	145-146, society motivated some individuals and groups to call for the abolition of slavery and greater	175-170, society motivated some marriadals and groups to can for the aboution of stavery and greater political democracy in the new state and national governments.

D. In response to women's participation in the American Revolution, Enlightenment ideas,	150-153, 166-167 and women's appeals for expanded roles, an ideal of "republican motherhood" gained popularity. It called on women to teach republican values within the family and granted women a new importance in American political culture.
E. The American Revolution and the ideals set forth in the Declaration of Independence	131,144-145,172 reverberated in France, Haiti, and Latin America, inspiring future independence movements.
3.2.II. After declaring independence, American political leaders created new	150-156, 162-constitutions and declarations of rights that articulated the role of the state and	168, 307, A7-A15 federal governments while protecting individual liberties and limiting both centralized power and excessive popular influence. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0)
A. Many new state constitutions placed power in the hands of the legislative branch and	150-151
maintained property qualifications for voting and citizenship.	454.457
B. The Articles of Confederation unified the newly independent states, creating a central	151-156 government with limited power. After the Revolution, difficulties over international trade, finances, interstate commerce, foreign relations, and internal unrest led to calls for a stronger central government.
C. Delegates from the states participated in a Constitutional Convention and through	162-167, A7-A15
negotiation, collaboration, and compromise proposed a constitution that created a limited but	102-101, A1-A13 dynamic central government embodying federalism and providing for a separation of powers between its three branches.
D. The Constitutional Convention compromised over the representation of slave states in	164,167
Congress and the role of the federal government in regulating both slavery and the slave trade, allowing the prohibition of the international slave trade after 1808.
E. In the debate over ratifying the Constitution, Anti-Federalists opposing ratification battled	167-168, 307 with Federalists, whose principles were articulated in the Federalist Papers (primarily written by Alexander Hamilton and James Madison). Federalists ensured the ratification of the Constitution by promising the addition of a Bill of Rights that enumerated individual rights and explicitly restricted the powers of the federal government.
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United	155, 169-178,
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political,	155, 169-178, 183-184, 198
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0)
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political	183-184, 198
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice.	183-184, 198
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into	183-184, 198
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the	183-184, 198 169-171
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most	183-184, 198 169-171
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican	183-184, 198 169-171
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison.	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising	183-184, 198 169-171
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution.	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture.	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations.	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.1. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153-
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.1. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174,
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.I. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0)	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.1. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0) A. Various American Indian groups repeatedly evaluated and adjusted their alliances with	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434 146-147, 155,
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.1. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0) A. Various American Indian groups repeatedly evaluated and adjusted their alliances with Europeans, other tribes, and the U.S., seeking to limit migration of white settlers and	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.1. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0) A. Various American Indian groups repeatedly evaluated and adjusted their alliances with Europeans, other tribes, and the U.S., seeking to limit migration of white settlers and maintain control of tribal lands and natural resources. British alliances with American Indians	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434 146-147, 155,
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.I. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0) A. Various American Indian groups repeatedly evaluated and adjusted their alliances with Europeans, other tribes, and the U.S., seeking to limit migration of white settlers and maintain control of tribal lands and natural resources. British alliances with American Indians contributed to tensions between the U.S. and Britain.	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434 146-147, 155, 172-174
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.I. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0) A. Various American Indian groups repeatedly evaluated and adjusted their alliances with Europeans, other tribes, and the U.S., seeking to limit migration of white settlers and maintain control of tribal lands and natural resources. British alliances with American Indians contributed to tensions between the U.S. and Britain. B. As increasing numbers of migrants from North America and other parts of the world	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434 146-147, 155,
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.1. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0) A. Various American Indian groups repeatedly evaluated and adjusted their alliances with Europeans, other tribes, and the U.S., seeking to limit migration of white settlers and maintain control of tribal lands and natural resources. British alliances with American Indians contributed to tensions between the U.S. and Britain. B. As increasing numbers of migrants from North America and other parts of the world continued to move westward, frontier cultures that had emerged in the colonial period	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434 146-147, 155, 172-174
3.2.III. New forms of national culture and political institutions developed in the United States alongside continued regional variations and differences over economic, political, social, and foreign policy issues. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-2.0) A. During the presidential administrations of George Washington and John Adams, political leaders created institutions and precedents that put the principles of the Constitution into practice. B. Political leaders in the 1790s took a variety of positions on issues such as the relationship between the national government and the states, economic policy, foreign policy, and the balance between liberty and order. This led to the formation of political parties — most significantly the Federalists, led by Alexander Hamilton, and the Democratic-Republican Party, led by Thomas Jefferson and James Madison. C. The expansion of slavery in the deep South and adjacent western lands and rising antislavery sentiment began to create distinctive regional attitudes toward the institution. D. Ideas about national identity increasingly found expression in works of art, literature, and architecture. Key Concept 3.3: Migration within North America and competition over resources, boundaries intensified conflicts among peoples and nations. 3.3.I. In the decades after American independence, interactions among different groups resulted in competition for resources, shifting alliances, and cultural blending. (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0) A. Various American Indian groups repeatedly evaluated and adjusted their alliances with Europeans, other tribes, and the U.S., seeking to limit migration of white settlers and maintain control of tribal lands and natural resources. British alliances with American Indians contributed to tensions between the U.S. and Britain. B. As increasing numbers of migrants from North America and other parts of the world	183-184, 198 169-171 171-178 155 183-184, 198 s, and trade 146-147, 153- 155, 172-174, 347, 434 146-147, 155, 172-174

for admitting new states; the ordinance promoted public education, the protection of private property, and a ban on slavery in the Northwest Territory.
D. An ambiguous relationship between the federal government and American Indian tribes	155, 172-174 contributed to problems regarding treaties and American Indian legal claims relating to the seizure of their lands.
E. The Spanish, supported by the bonded labor of the local American Indians, expanded their	347, 434 mission settlements into California; these provided opportunities for social mobility among soldiers and led to new cultural blending.
3.3.II. The continued presence of European powers in North America challenged the	152-153, 173-175
United States to find ways to safeguard its borders, maintain neutral trading rights, and promote its economic interests. (NAT-3.0) (POL-1.0) (WOR-1.0) (WOR-2.0)
A. The United States government forged diplomatic initiatives aimed at dealing with the	152-153, 174 continued British and Spanish presence in North America, as U.S. settlers migrated beyond the Appalachians and sought free navigation of the Mississippi River.
B. War between France and Britain resulting from the French Revolution presented	173-174 challenges to the United States over issues of free trade and foreign policy and fostered political disagreement.
C. George Washington's Farewell Address encouraged national unity, as he cautioned	175 against political factions and warned about the danger of permanent foreign alliances.

PERIOD 4: 1800-1848

Key Concept 4.1: The United States began to develop a modern democracy and celebrated a new national culture, while Americans sought to define the nation's democratic ideals and change their society and institutions to match them.

4.1.I. The nation's transition to a more participatory democracy was achieved by expanding suffrage from a system based on property ownership to one based on voting by all adult white men, and it was accompanied by the growth of political parties. (NAT-2.0) (NAT-4.0) (POL-1.0) (WXT-2.0)	195-197, 199- 200, 204, 215- 218, 222-224, 226-227, 233- 238, 242-245
A. In the early 1800s, national political parties continued to debate issues such as the tariff, powers of the federal government, and relations with European powers.	195-197, 199-200, 204, 215-216, 227
B. Supreme Court decisions established the primacy of the judiciary in determining the meaning of the Constitution and asserted that federal laws took precedence over state laws.	195-197, 222-224
C. By the 1820s and 1830s, new political parties arose — the Democrats, led, by Andrew Jackson, and the Whigs, led by Henry Clay — that disagreed about the role and powers of the federal government and issues such as the national bank, tariffs, and federally funded internal improvements.	217-218, 233-234, 242-243, 244-245
D. Regional interests often trumped national concerns as the basis for many political leaders' positions on slavery and economic policy.	222, 226, 235-238
4.1.II. While Americans embraced a new national culture, various groups developed	181-188, 280-distinctive cultures of their own. (NAT-4.0) (CUL-1.0) (CUL-2.0) (CUL-4.0)	281, 303-307, 310-312, 315-
	323, 325-326,
	331-332, 335-337
A. The rise of democratic and individualistic beliefs, a response to rationalism, and changes to society caused by the market revolution, along with greater social and geographical mobility, contributed to a Second Great Awakening among Protestants that influenced moral and social reforms and inspired utopian and other religious movements.	184-188, 281, 318-320, 321-323, 325-326
B. A new national culture emerged that combined American elements, European influences, and regional cultural sensibilities.	181-184, 315-318
C. Liberal social ideas from abroad and Romantic beliefs in human perfectibility influenced literature, art, philosophy, and architecture.	183-184, 315-318, 336-337
D. Enslaved blacks and free African Americans created communities and strategies to protect their dignity and family structures, and they joined political efforts aimed at changing their status.	188, 280-281, 303-307, 310-312, 331-332, 335 intellectual movements, worked primarily outside of government institutions to advance their ideals, (NAT-10) (POL-20) (CUL-30). A. Americans formed new voluntary organizations that aimed to change individual behaviors and improve society through temperance and other reform efforts. B. Abolitonist and antislavery movements gradually achieved emancipation in the North, contributing to the growth of the free African Americans rights. Artislavery efforts in the South were largely limited to unsuccessful slave refellions. C. A women's rights movement sugght to create greater equality and opportunities for women, expressing its ideals at the Seneca Falls Convention. Key Concept -42: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated economy, precipitating profound changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities. 4.2.I. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest nore closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-30) (CUL-40) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goals for distant mar	44 III T ' 1 CA ' ' ' 11 1' ' 1	200 210 222 advance their ideals. (NAT-1.0) (POL-2.0) (CUL-8.0) A Americans formed new voluntary organizations that aimed to change individual behaviors and improve society through temperance and other reform efforts. B. Abolitionist and antislavery movements gradually achieved emancipation in the North. Contributing to the growth of the free African American population, even as many state governments restricted African American population, even as many state governments restricted African American population, even as many state governments restricted African Americans rights. Antislavery efforts in the South were largely limited to unsuccessful sides at the Sencea Falls Convention. Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated recommy, precipitating profund changes to U.S. society and to mational and regional identities. 4.2.1. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture instead they supported themselves producing goods for di	4.1.III. Increasing numbers of Americans, many inspired by new religious and	308-310, 322-

A. Americans formed new voluntary organizations that aimed to change individual behaviors and improve society through temperance and other reform efforts. B. Abolitionist and antislavery movements gradually achieved emancipation in the North, contributing to the growth of the firea American population, even as many state governments restricted African Americans rights. Antislavery efforts in the South were largely limited to unsuccessful slave rebellions. C. A women's rights movement sought to create greater equality and opportunities for women, expressing its ideals at the Sencea Falls Convention. Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerate economy, precipitating profound changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities. A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged murkets and helped fuster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUI-3.0) (CUI-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisulisistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but al		325, 327-335 and improve society through temperance and other reform efforts. A Aboltionist and antislavery movements gradually achieved emancipation in the North, contributing to the growth of the free African American population, even as many state governments restricted African Americans' rights. Antislavery efforts in the South were largely limited to unsuccessful slave rebellions. C. A women's rights movement sought to create greater equality and opportunities for women, expressing its ideals at the Seneta Falls Convention. Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerate excornous, pressing its ideals at the Seneta Falls Convention. Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated excornous, pressing its ideals at the Seneta Falls Convention. Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated excornous, pressing its ideals at the Seneta U.S. society and to national and regional identities. 4.2.I. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) 270-288-290 288-290 288-290 288-290 288-290 288-290 289-270, 288-290 280-270, 288-290 280-270, 288-290 280-270, 288-290 280-270, 288-290 280-270, 288-290 280-270, 288-290 280-280
B. Abolitionist and antislavery movements gradually achieved emancipation in the North, contributing to the growth of the fired African American population, even as many state governments restricted African American frights. Antislavery efforts in the South were largely limited to unsuccessful slave rebellions. C. A women's rights movement sought to create greater equality and opportunities for women, expressing its ideals at the Seneca Falls Convention. Rey Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated economy, precipitating profound changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities. 4.2.1. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) B. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Inmovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation and judicial systems supported the development. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (UUI-3.0) (UUI-		322-323, 325-327
contributing to the growth of the free African American population, even as many state government serstified African Americans rights. Antislavery efforts in the South were largely limited to unsuccessful slave rebellions. C. A women's rights movement sought to create greater equality and opportunities for women, expressing its ideals at the Seneca Falls Convention. Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated the American economy, precipitating performed changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities. 4.2.1. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.11. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some, this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly wi		200 210 220 222 governments restricted African Americans' rights. Antislavery efforts in the South were largely limited to unsuccessful slave rebelloins. C. A women's rights movement sought to create greater equality and opportunities for women, expressing its ideals at the Seneca Falls Convention. Rev Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated economy, precipitating profound changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities. A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the elegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canads, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-8.0) (CUL-4.0) 4. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, h largely limited to unsuccessful slave rebellions. C. A women's rights movement sought to create greater equality and opportunities for women, expressing its ideals at the Seneca Falls Convention. Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated economy, precipitating protouch changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities. 4.2.1. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (C		333-335,
Key Concept 4.2: Innovations in technology, agriculture, and commerce powerfully accelerated the American economy, precipitating profound changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities. 4.2.I. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some, this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy subsiness elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.7), 245-246, 255-259, 2	largely limited to unsuccessful slave rebellions.
4.2.I. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thiving new communities along the production and the re		327-330
4.2.I. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the elegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some, this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohion and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, 216, 217-218, 269, 294-301 A. Large numbers of international production and export of traditional growth of further
A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textle machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some, this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the d	economy, precipitating profound changes to U.S. society and to national and regional identities
A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving northern cities, while	4.2.1. New transportation systems and technologies dramatically expanded	188-190, 216-
A. Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce, in which market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some, this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-245-246, 255-259, 266-269, 294-301) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries pr	manufacturing and agricultural production. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0)	· ·
market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of goods became more organized. B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elieb but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international graphs, contributing to the growth of a distincti	A Entrepreneurs helped to create a market revolution in production and commerce in which
B. Innovations including textile machinery, steam engines, interchangeable parts, the telegraph, and agricultural inventions increased the efficiency of production methods. C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the A.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify along the Ohio and Mississipir irvers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, po	market relationships between producers and consumers came to prevail as the manufacture of	200-270
c. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. A.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some, this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasi		188-190 266
C. Legislation and judicial systems supported the development of roads, canals, and railroads, which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-3.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring ifferent sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest which extended and enlarged markets and helped foster regional interdependence. Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. inter
Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked to the South. 4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S. society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississipir rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shap society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	Transportation networks linked the North and Midwest more closely than either was linked
A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-220, 0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.I. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	4.2.II. The changes caused by the market revolution had significant effects on U.S.	270-287
A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no longer relied on semisubsistence agriculture; instead they supported themselves producing goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-27, 245-246, 255-259, 266-269, 294-301) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the aution's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.I. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	society, workers' lives, and gender and family relations. (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-
goods for distant markets. B. The growth of manufacturing drove a significant increase in prosperity and standards of living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.Ill. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.2.Ill. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify 216–219, 226–227, 245–246, 225-259, 266–269, 294–299, 295–259, 266–269, 294–299, 295–299, 288–290 218-219, 225–225, 266–269, 294–299, 298–290 2294–2298, 298–301 2294–2298, 298–301	A. Increasing numbers of Americans, especially women and men working in factories, no	270-278 living for some; this led to the emergence of a larger middle class and a small but wealthy business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.2.III. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	goods for distant markets.
business elite but also to a large and growing population of laboring poor. C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.I. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to		279-282
the growth of definitions of domestic ideals that emphasized the separation of public and private spheres. 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.I. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to 4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 216-219, 226-227, 245-246, 255-259, 266-269, 294-301 218-219, 255-259, 266-269, 294-301 218-219, 255-259, 266-269, 294-290 226-217-218, 269, 294-295 226-227, 245-246, 269, 294-295 226-227, 245-246, 266-268	C. Gender and family roles changed in response to the market revolution, particularly with	282-287
the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 227, 245-246, 255-259, 266-269, 294-301 218-219, 255-259, 288-290 216, 217-218, 269, 294-295 2294-295 2294-295 226-227, 245-246, 266-268
2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 255-259, 266- 269, 294-295, 288-290 216, 217-218, 269, 294-295 226-227, 245-246, 266-268 226-227, 245-246, 266-268 226-227, 245-246, 266-268 266-268	4.2.III. Economic development shaped settlement and trade patterns, helping to unify	216-219, 226-
2.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0) A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 255-259, 266- 269, 294-295, 288-290 216, 217-218, 269, 294-295 226-227, 245-246, 266-268 226-227, 245-246, 266-268 226-227, 245-246, 266-268 266-268	the nation while also encouraging the growth of different regions. (POL-3.0) (WXT-	227, 245-246,
A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 200-201, 205-		· · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · · ·
A. Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing northern cities, while many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 218-219, 255-259, 288-290 216, 217-218, 269, 294-295 2294-295 2294-295 226-227, 245-246, 266-268		•
many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities along the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	A Large numbers of international migrants moved to industrializing porthern sities, while	· ·
B. Increasing Southern cotton production and the related growth of Northern manufacturing, banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	many Americans moved west of the Appalachians, developing thriving new communities banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international commercial ties. C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to		216, 217-218
C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional agricultural staples, contributing to the growth of a distinctive Southern regional identity. D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.I. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	banking, and shipping industries promoted the development of national and international
D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates over whether such policies would benefit agriculture or industry, potentially favoring different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to	C. Southern business leaders continued to rely on the production and export of traditional	294-298, 298-301 different sections of the country. Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to 200-201, 205-	D. Plans to further unify the U.S. economy, such as the American System, generated debates
 Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national borders shaped the nation's foreign policy and spurred government and private initiatives. 4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to 		= 30 = 30
4.3.1. Struggling to create an independent global presence, the United States sought to 200-201, 205-	Key Concept 4.3: The U.S. interest in increasing foreign trade and expanding its national bord	ders shaped the 200-201, 205-
	claim territory throughout the North American continent and promote foreign trade.	208, 221, 224-

(MIG-2.0) (WOR-1.0) (WOR-2.0)	225, 238-242
A. Following the Louisiana Purchase, the United States government sought influence and	200-201, 205-208, control over North America and the Western Hemisphere through a variety of means,	224-225, 238-242 including exploration, military actions, American Indian removal, and diplomatic efforts such as the Monroe Doctrine.
B. Frontier settlers tended to champion expansion efforts, while American Indian resistance	205-208.221, led to a sequence of wars and federal efforts to control and relocate American Indian	238-242 populations.
4.3.II. The United States' acquisition of lands in the West gave rise to contests over	218-219, 222-
the extension of slavery into new territories. (POL-2.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-	223, 294-295,
1.0)	330-335, 351, 353
A. As overcultivation depleted arable land in the Southeast, slaveholders began relocating	218-219, 294-295 their plantations to more fertile lands west of the Appalachians, where the institution of slavery continued to grow.
B. Antislavery efforts increased in the North, while in the South, although the majority of	301-303, 330-335
Southerners owned no slaves, most leaders argued that slavery was part of the Southern way of life.
C. Congressional attempts at political compromise, such as the Missouri Compromise, only	222-223, 351, 353 temporarily stemmed growing tensions between opponents and defenders of slavery.

PERIOD 5: 1844-1877

Key Concept 5.1: The United States became more connected with the world, pursued an expansionist foreign policy in the Western Hemisphere, and emerged as the destination for many migrants from other countries.

5.1.I. Popular enthusiasm for U.S. expansion, bolstered by economic and security interests, resulted in the acquisition of new territories, substantial migration westward, and new overseas initiatives. (ID-2) (WXT-2) (WOR-5) (WOR-6) (ENV-3) (ENV-4)	251, 340-344, 346-356, 436-438
A. The desire for access to natural and mineral resources and the hope of many settlers for	342, 343-344, economic opportunities or religious refuge led to an increased migration to and settlement in the West.	351-352
B. Advocates of annexing western lands argued that Manifest Destiny and the superiority of American institutions compelled the United States to expand its borders westward to the Pacific ocean.	340-341,343
C. The U.S. added large territories in the West through victory in the Mexican-American	342-343, 343-344,
War and diplomatic negotiations, raising questions about the status of slavery, American Indians, and Mexicans in the newly acquired lands.	346-350, 351-354
D. Westward migration was boosted during and after the Civil War by the passage of new	355-356, 436, legislation promoting Western transportation and economic development.	437-438
E. U.S. interest in expanding trade led to economic, diplomatic, and cultural initiatives to create more ties with Asia.	251
5.1.II. In the 1840s and 1850s, Americans continued to debate questions about rights	255-262, 343-
and citizenship for various groups of U.S. inhabitants. (NAT-4.0) (CUL-4.0) (MIG-1.0)	344, 347-348, 351-352, 490-491
A. Substantial numbers of international migrants continued to arrive in the United States	255-259, 262, from Europe and Asia, mainly from Ireland and Germany, often settling in ethnic	351-352, 490, communities where they could preserve elements of their languages and customs.	490-491
B. A strongly anti-Catholic nativist movement arose that was aimed at limiting new immigrants' political power and cultural influence.	259-262
C. U.S. government interaction and conflict with Mexican Americans and American Indians	343-344, 347-348, increased in regions newly taken from American Indians and Mexico, altering these groups' economic self-sufficiency and cultures.	351-352
$\mathbf{V} = \mathbf{C} = \mathbf{C} + $	1 /1

Key Concept 5.2: Intensified by expansion and deepening, regional divisions, debates over slavery and other economic, cultural, and political issues led the nation into civil war.

5.2.1. Ideological and economic differences over slavery produced an array of diverging responses from Americans in the North and the South. (NAT-1.0) (POL-2.0) (WXT-

72-73, 74, 236-237, 256-259,

1.0) (CUL-2.0)	268-279, 294- 298, 302-310,
	331-335, 353, 355, 357-358,
	366, 379-380
A. The North's expanding manufacturing economy relied on free labor in contrast to the Southern economy's dependence on slave labor. Some Northerners did not object to slavery on principle but claimed that slavery would undermine the free labor market. As a result, a free-soil movement arose that portrayed the expansion of slavery as incompatible with free labor.	256-259, 268-279, 294-298, 303-308, 357-358
B. African American and white abolitionists, although a minority in the North, mounted a highly visible campaign against slavery, presenting moral arguments against the institution, assisting slaves' escapes, and sometimes expressing a willingness to use violence to achieve their goals.	308-310, 331-332, 333-335, 355,
C. Defenders of slavery based their arguments on racial doctrines, the view that slavery was a positive social good, and the belief that slavery and states' rights were protected by the Constitution.	72-73, 74, 236- 237, 302-303, 353, 358, 366, 379-380
5.2.II. Debates over slavery came to dominate political discussion in the 1850s, culminating in the bitter election of 1860 and the secession of Southern states. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0)	262, 342-343, 350-351, 353- 361, 365-366
A. The Mexican Cession led to heated controversies over whether to allow slavery in the newly acquired territories.	342-343, 350-351, 353-354
B. The courts and national leaders made a variety of attempts to resolve the issue of slavery in the territories, including the Compromise of 1850, the Kansas–Nebraska Act, and the Dred Scott decision, but these ultimately failed to reduce conflict.	353-354, 355-357, 358-359
C. The Second Party System ended when the issues of slavery and anti-immigrant nativism weakened loyalties to the two major parties and fostered the emergence of sectional parties, most notably the Republican Party in the North.	262, 356, 357, 359-360, 361
D. Abraham Lincoln's victory on the Republicans' free-soil platform in the presidential election of 1860 was accomplished without any Southern electoral votes. After a series of contested debates about secession, most slave states voted to secede from the Union, precipitating the Civil War.	360-361, 365-366
Key Concept 5.3: The Union victory in the Civil War and the contested reconstruction of the sissues of slavery and secession, but left unresolved many questions about the power of the feder citizenship rights.
5.3.I. The North's greater manpower and industrial resources, the leadership of Abraham Lincoln and others, and the decision to emancipate slaves eventually led to the Union military victory over the Confederacy in the devastating Civil War. (NAT-1.0) (WOR-2.0)	368-374, 376- 383, 387-397
A. Both the Union and the Confederacy mobilized their economies and societies to wage the war even while facing considerable home front opposition.	368-372, 378-380
B. Lincoln and most Union supporters began the Civil War to preserve the Union, but Lincoln's decision to issue the Emancipation Proclamation reframed the purpose of the war and helped prevent the Confederacy from gaining full diplomatic support from European	372-373, 376-377, 383, 397 powers. Many African Americans fled southern plantations and enlisted in the Union Army, helping to undermine the Confederacy.
C. Lincoln sought to reunify the country and used speeches such as the Gettysburg Address to portray the struggle against slavery as the fulfillment of America's founding democratic ideals.	374, 371, 397
D. Although the Confederacy showed military initiative and daring early in the war, the Union ultimately succeeded due to improvements in leadership and strategy, key victories, greater resources, and the wartime destruction of the South's infrastructure.	378-380, 381-383, 387-397
5.3.II. Reconstruction and the Civil War ended slavery, altered relationships between the states and the federal government, and led to debates over new definitions of citizenship, particularly regarding the rights of African Americans, women, and other	333, 376, 378, 404-412, 414-

minorities. (NAT-2.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (CUL-3.0)	418, 420-425, 428, 560, 566, 722, 788-789, 829
A. The 13th Amendment abolished slavery, while the 14th and 15th amendments granted African Americans citizenship, equal protection under the laws, and voting rights.	376, 397, 404, 405-407
B. The women's rights movement was both emboldened and divided over the 14th and 15 th amendments to the Constitution.	333, 378, 560
C. Efforts by radical and moderate Republicans to change the balance of power between Congress and the presidency and to reorder race relations in the defeated South yielded some short-term successes. Reconstruction opened up political opportunities and other leadership roles to former slaves, but it ultimately failed, due both to determined Southern resistance and the North's waning resolve.	402-410, 414-418
D. Southern plantation owners continued to own the majority of the region's land even after Reconstruction. Former slaves sought land ownership but generally fell short of self-sufficiency, as an exploitative and soil-intensive sharecropping system limited blacks' and poor whites' access to land in the South.	409-412, 420-421
E. Segregation, violence, Supreme Court decisions, and local political tactics progressively stripped away African American rights, but the 14th and 15th amendments eventually became the basis for court decisions upholding civil rights in the 20th century.	414, 418,422-425, 428, 566, 722, 788-789, 829

PERIOD 6: 1865-1898

Key Concept 6.1: Technological advances, large-scale production methods, and the opening of new markets encouraged the rise of industrial capitalism in the United States.

6.1.I. Large-scale industrial production — accompanied by massive technological	368, 436, 459-change, expanding international communication networks, and pro-growth	467, 475-476, government policies — generated rapid economic development and business	487-488, 500-consolidation. (WXT-1.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) (WOR-2.0)	502, 508, 532-538, 543, 545,
	547-548, 622-623
A. Following the Civil War, government subsidies for transportation and communication	368, 436, 508 systems helped open new markets in North America.
B. Businesses made use of technological innovations, greater access to natural resources,	459-463, 464-467, redesigned financial and management structures, advances in marketing, and a growing labor	475-476, 501-502, force to dramatically increase the production of goods.	622-623
C. As the price of many goods decreased, workers' real wages increased, providing new access	475, 487-488, to a variety of goods and services; many Americans' standards of living improved, while the gap between rich and poor grew.	500-502
D. Many business leaders sought increased profits by consolidating corporations into large trusts and holding companies, which further concentrated wealth.	464-467
E. Businesses and foreign policymakers increasingly looked outside U.S. borders in an effort	532-538, 543, to gain greater influence and control over markets and natural resources in the Pacific Rim, Asia, and Latin America.	545, 547-548
6.1.II. A variety of perspectives on the economy and labor developed during a time of	419-422, 464-
financial panics and downturns. (WXT-1.0) (WXT-2.0) (CUL-4.0)	471, 475-483
A. Some argued that laissez-faire policies and competition promoted economic growth in the long run, and they opposed government intervention during economic downturns.	464-471
B. The industrial workforce expanded and became more diverse through internal and international migration; child labor also increased.	475-476, 478
C. Labor and management battled over wages and working conditions, with workers organizing local and national unions and/or directly confronting business leaders.	476-483
D. Despite the industrialization of some segments of the Southern economy — a change	419-420, 420-421, promoted by Southern leaders who called for a "New South" — agriculture based on	421-422 sharecropping and tenant farming continued to be the primary economic activity in the South.
6.1.III. New systems of production and transportation enabled consolidation within	289, 453-456, agriculture, which, along with periods of instability, spurred a variety of responses from farmers. (POL-2.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-3.0)	518-524, 527-530

A. Improvements in mechanization helped agricultural production increase substantially and contributed to declines in food prices.	289, 455-456
B. Many farmers responded to the increasing consolidation in agricultural markets and their dependence on the evolving railroad system by creating local and regional cooperative organizations.	453-456, 518-522
C. Economic instability inspired agrarian activists to create the People's (Populist) Party, which called for a stronger governmental role in regulating the American economic system.	522-524, 527-530
Key Concept 6.2: The migrations that accompanied industrialization transformed both urban United States and caused dramatic social and cultural change.	and rural areas of the 6.2.1. International and internal migration increased urban populations and fostered	476-477, 488-
the growth of a new urban culture. (NAT-4.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0)	494, 498-508, 510-511
A. As cities became areas of economic growth featuring new factories and businesses, they attracted immigrants from Asia and from southern and eastern Europe, as well as African American migrants within and out of the South. Many migrants moved to escape poverty, religious persecution, and limited opportunities for social mobility in their home countries or regions.	476-477, 488-491
B. Urban neighborhoods based on particular ethnicities, races, and classes provided new cultural opportunities for city dwellers.	490-492, 494, 496-497, 507-508, 510-511
C. Increasing public debates over assimilation and Americanization accompanied the growth of international migration. Many immigrants negotiated compromises between the cultures they brought and the culture they found in the United States.	488-490, 491-493
D. In an urban atmosphere where the access to power was unequally distributed, political machines thrived, in part by providing immigrants and the poor with social services.	498-500
E. Corporations' need for managers and for male and female clerical workers as well as increased access to educational institutions fostered the growth of a distinctive middle class. A growing amount of leisure time also helped expand consumer culture.	500-502, 502-508, 510-511
6.2.II. Larger numbers of migrants moved to the West in search of land and economic	432-433, 435-
opportunity, frequently provoking competition and violent conflict. (NAT-1.0) (POL-3.0) (MIG-2.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-1.0)	443, 447-454, 510-511, 681- 682, 770
A. The building of transcontinental railroads, the discovery of mineral resources, and government policies promoted economic growth and created new communities and centers of commercial activity.	436, 437-441
B. In hopes of achieving ideals of self-sufficiency and independence, migrants moved to both rural and boomtown areas of the West for opportunities, such as building the railroads, mining, farming, and ranching.	435-436, 437-438, 439-443, 453-454
C. As migrant populations increased in number and the American bison population was decimated, competition for land and resources in the West among white settlers, American Indians, and Mexican Americans led to an increase in violent conflict.	432,433, 435
D. The U.S. government violated treaties with American Indians and responded to resistance with military force, eventually confining American Indians to reservations and denying tribal sovereignty.	447-453
E. Many American Indians preserved their cultures and tribal identities despite government policies promoting assimilation, and they attempted to develop self-sustaining economic practices.	453, 454, 510, 511, 681-682, 770
Key Concept 6.3: The Gilded Age produced new cultural and intellectual movements, public r political debates over economic and social policies.	reform efforts, and
6.3.1. New cultural and intellectual movements both buttressed and challenged the	415, 471-472, social order of the Gilded Age. (CUL-1.0) (CUL-2.0)	494, 510, 532, 553, 562-563
A. Social commentators advocated theories later described as Social Darwinism to justify the	415, 471, 472, success of those at the top of the socioeconomic structure as both appropriate and inevitable.	510,532

B. Some business leaders argued that the wealthy had a moral obligation to help the less fortunate and improve society, as articulated in the idea known as the Gospel of Wealth, and they made philanthropic contributions that enhanced educational opportunities and urban environments.	471-472, 494
C. A number of artists and critics, including agrarians, utopians, socialists, and advocates of the Social Gospel, championed alternative visions for the economy and U.S. society.	553, 562-563
6.3.II. Dramatic social changes in the period inspired political debates over citizenship, corruption, and the proper relationship between business and government. (NAT-2.0) (POL-1.0) (POL-2.0) (CUL-3.0)	421-425, 426, 443, 471-475, 509, 511, 515- 531, 533-554, 555-560
A. The major political parties appealed to lingering divisions from the Civil War and contended over tariffs and currency issues, even as reformers argued that economic greed and self-interest had corrupted all levels of government.	472-475, 515-531
B. Many women sought greater equality with men, often joining voluntary organizations, going to college, promoting social and political reform, and, like Jane Addams, working in settlement houses to help immigrants adapt to U.S. language and customs.	443,511,521- 522,533-554, 555-560
C. The Supreme Court decision in Plessy v. Ferguson that upheld racial segregation helped to mark the end of most of the political gains African Americans made during Reconstruction. Facing increased violence, discrimination, and scientific theories of race, African American reformers continued to fight for political and social equality.	421-425, 426, 471, 488-489, 509

PERIOD 7: 1890–1945

Key Concept 7.1: Growth expanded opportunity, while economic instability led to new efforts to reform U.S. society and its economic system.

society and its economic system.
7.1.1. The United States continued its transition from a rural, agricultural economy to	459-464, 496-
an urban, industrial economy led by large companies. (WXT-2.0) (WXT-3.0) (MIG-	497, 500-502,
2.0)	568, 576-577,
	598, 606-607,
	615-619, 622-
	627, 630-631,
	640-643, 656-
	657, 668, 676-678
A. New technologies and manufacturing techniques helped focus the U.S. economy on the	459-464, 496-497, production of consumer goods, contributing to improved standards of living, greater personal	500-502, 615-616, mobility, and better communications systems.	618-619, 622-624
B. By 1920, a majority of the U.S. population lived in urban centers, which offered new	568, 598, 617, economic opportunities for women, international migrants, and internal migrants.	620-621, 624-627, 630-631
C. Episodes of credit and market instability in the early 20th century, in particular the Great	576-577, 606-607,
Depression, led to calls for a stronger financial regulatory system.	640-643, 656-657,
	668, 676-678
7.1.II. In the Progressive Era of the early 20th century, Progressives responded to	552-568, 572-576 political corruption, economic instability, and social concerns by calling for greater government action and other political and social measures. (POL-2.0) (POL-3.0) (GEO-1.0) (CUL-3.0)
A. Some Progressive Era journalists attacked what they saw as political corruption, social injustice, and economic inequality, while reformers, often from the middle and upper classes and including many women, worked to effect social changes in cities and among immigrant populations.	552-553, 553-559, 560-567
B. on the national level, Progressives sought federal legislation that they believed would	559-560, 560-561, effectively regulate the economy, expand democracy, and generate moral reform. Progressive amendments to the Constitution dealt with issues such as prohibition and woman suffrage.	562-563, 566-567

C. Preservationists and conservationists both supported the establishment of national parks	572-573, 574-576 while advocating different government responses to the overuse of natural resources.
D. The Progressives were divided over many issues. Some Progressives supported Southern	554-555, 565-566, segregation, while others ignored its presence. Some Progressives advocated expanding	568 popular participation in government, while others called for greater reliance on professional and technical experts to make government more efficient. Progressives also disagreed about immigration restriction.
7.1.III. During the 1930s, policymakers responded to the mass unemployment and	663-669, 671-social upheavals of the Great Depression by transforming the U.S. into a limited	673, 675, 678-welfare state, redefining the goals and ideas of modern American liberalism. (POL-1.0)	679, 681-684
(POL-3.0) (WXT-1.0) (WXT-2.0)	017,001-004
A. Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal attempted to end the Great Depression by using	663-669, 672-673, government power to provide relief to the poor, stimulate recovery, and reform the American	678-679, 682-684 economy.
B. Radical, union, and populist movements pushed Roosevelt toward more extensive efforts to	663, 666-667, change the American economic system, while conservatives in Congress and the Supreme	669-671, 675, 678
Court sought to limit the New Deal's scope.
C. Although the New Deal did not end the Depression, it left a legacy of reforms and	668, 672, 675, regulatory agencies and fostered a long-term political realignment in which many ethnic	678-679, 681-682, groups, African Americans, and working-class communities identified with the Democratic	683-684
Party.	C 1, 1,1
Key Concept 7.2: Innovations in communications and technology contributed to the growth of communications are technology contributed to the growth of communications and intermediately properties.	f mass culture, while significant changes occurred in internal and international migration patterns. 7.2.1. Popular culture grew in influence in U.S. society, even as debates increased over	508 500 500
the effects of culture on public values, morals, and American national identity. (NAT-	508-509, 599, 602-603, 606-
2.0) (WXT-3.0) (CUL-1.0) (CUL-2.0) (CUL-4.0)	•
2.0) (WAT-3.0) (COL-1.0) (COL-4.0)	611, 615-617,
	620, 622-635,
	650-654
A. New forms of mass media, such as radio and cinema, contributed to the spread of national	615-616, 623-624, culture as well as greater awareness of regional cultures.	626-627, 650-653
B. Migration gave rise to new forms of art and literature that expressed ethnic and regional	508-509, 630-631, identities, such the Harlem Renaissance movement.	650, 653-654
C. official restrictions on freedom of speech grew during World War I, as increased anxiety	599, 602-603, about radicalism led to a Red Scare and attacks on labor activism and immigrant culture.	606-611
D. In the 1920s, cultural and political controversies emerged as Americans debated gender roles, modernism, science, religion, and issues related to race and immigration.	617, 620, 622-635
7.2.II. Economic pressures, global events, and political developments caused sharp	437, 476, 567-variations in the numbers, sources, and experiences of both international and internal	568, 596-598, migrants. (CUL-4.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0)	602-603, 607-mgrants. (CCL 1.0) (MC 2.0)	•
	609, 617, 620-
	621, 631-634,
	646, 648, 709,
	712-713, 715-
	717, 721
A. Immigration from Europe reached its peak in the years before World War I. During and	437, 476, 567-
after World War I, nativist campaigns against some ethnic groups led to the passage of	568, 602-603, quotas that restricted immigration, particularly from southern and eastern Europe, and	620, 631-634, 721
increased barriers to Asian immigration.	FO(FOO (CO
B. The increased demand for war production and labor during World War I and World War	596-598, 609,
II and the economic difficulties of the 1930s led many Americans to migrate to urban centers in search of economic opportunities	709, 712-713,
in search of economic opportunities.	716-717
C. In a Great Migration during and after World War I, African Americans escaping	598, 607-609, segregation, racial violence, and limited economic opportunity in the South moved to the North and West, where they found new opportunities but still encountered discrimination.	617, 620, 715
D. Migration to the United States from Mexico and elsewhere in the Western Hemisphere	598, 620-621,
D. Migration to the Office States from Mexico and eisewhere in the Western Heinisphere	J 70, 020-021, increased, in spite of contradictory government policies toward Mexican immigration.	646, 648, 716, Key Concept 7.3: Participation in a series of global conflicts propelled the United States into a international power while renewing domestic debates over the nation's proper role in the world

7.3.1. In the late 19th century and early 20th century, new U.S. territorial ambitions	531-539, 542-and acquisitions in the Western Hemisphere and the Pacific accompanied heightened	548, 584-589, public debates over America's role in the world. (NAT-3.0) (WOR-2.0)	605-606
A. Imperialists cited economic opportunities, racial theories, competition with European	531-538, 547-548
empires, and the perception in the 1890s that the Western frontier was "closed" to argue that	584-589
Americans were destined to expand their culture and institutions to peoples around the globe.
B. Anti-imperialists cited principles of self-determination and invoked both racial theories and	544-545, 605-606
the U.S. foreign policy tradition of isolationism to argue that the U.S. should not extend its territory overseas. C. The American victory in the Spanish–American War led to the U.S. acquisition of island	E24 E20 E42 E44 territories in the Caribbean and the Pacific, an increase in involvement in Asia, and the	534-539, 542-544
suppression of a nationalist movement in the Philippines.	545-547, 547-548 584-589
**
7.3.II. World War I and its aftermath intensified ongoing debates about the nation's role in the world and how best to achieve national security and pursue American	589-595, 603-
interests. (NAT-1.0) (NAT-3.0) (WOR-2.0)	606, 687-702
A. After initial neutrality in World War I, the nation entered the conflict, departing from the	589-592
U.S. foreign policy tradition of noninvolvement in European affairs, in response to Woodrow	307-372
Wilson's call for the defense of humanitarian and democratic principles.
B. Although the American Expeditionary Forces played a relatively limited role in combat,	592-595 the U.S.'s entry helped to tip the balance of the conflict in favor of the Allies.
C. Despite Wilson's deep involvement in postwar negotiations, the U.S. Senate refused to	603-606 ratify the Treaty of Versailles or join the League of Nations.
D. In the years following World War I, the United States pursued a unilateral foreign policy	687-699 that used international investment, peace treaties, and select military intervention to promote a vision of international order, even while maintaining U.S. isolationism. E. In the 1930s, while many Americans were concerned about the rise of fascism and	(00 (01 (02 (05
totalitarianism, most opposed taking military action against the aggression of Nazi Germany	689-691, 693-695 699-702
and Japan until the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor drew the United States into World War	099-702
II.
7.3.III. U.S. participation in World War II transformed American society, while the	690, 692, 702, victory of the United States and its allies over the Axis powers vaulted the U.S. into a	705-709, 712-position of global, political, and military leadership. (NAT-3.0) (NAT-4.0) (CUL-3.0)	713, 715-717,
(WOR-2.0)	720-730, 733-738
A. Americans viewed the war as a fight for the survival of freedom and democracy against	690, 692,702, fascist and militarist ideologies. This perspective was later reinforced by revelations about	705, 707, 708-
Japanese wartime atrocities, Nazi concentration camps, and the Holocaust.	709
B. The mass mobilization of American society helped end the Great Depression, and the	709, 712-713 country's strong industrial base played a pivotal role in winning the war by equipping and	, provisioning allies and millions of U.S. troops.
C. Mobilization and military service provided opportunities for women and minorities to	715-717, 720-721 improve their socioeconomic positions for the war's duration, while also leading to debates over racial segregation. Wartime experiences also generated challenges to civil liberties, such as the internment of Japanese Americans. D. The United States and its allies achieved military victory through Allied according	705 700 722 720
D. The United States and its allies achieved military victory through Allied cooperation, technological and scientific advances, the contributions of servicemen and women, and	705-708, 722-730 campaigns such as Pacific "island-hopping" and the D-Day invasion. The use of atomic bombs hastened the end of the war and sparked debates about the morality of using atomic weapons.
E. The war-ravaged condition of Asia and Europe, and the dominant U.S. role in the Allied	729-730, 733-738 victory and postwar peace settlements, allowed the United States to emerge from the war as	, , , , , victory and postwar peace settlements, anowed the Critica States to emerge from the war as working to maintain a position of global leadership, with far-reaching domestic and internation	nal consequences.

8.1.1. United States policymakers engaged in a Cold War with the authoritarian Soviet	733-741, 745-
Union, seeking to limit the growth of Communist military power and ideological	747, 775-779, influence, create a free-market global economy, and build an international security	792-802, 824-
system. (WXT-2.0) (WOR-2.0)	828, 840-841
A. As postwar tensions dissolved the wartime alliance between Western democracies and the	733-741
Soviet Union, the United States developed a foreign policy based on collective security, international aid, and economic institutions that bolstered non-Communist nations.
B. Concerned by expansionist Communist ideology and Soviet repression, the United States	736-737, 740-741, sought to contain communism through a variety of measures, including major military	745-747, 792-802 engagements in Korea and Vietnam.
C. The Cold War fluctuated between periods of direct and indirect military confrontation and	745-747,775-779, periods of mutual coexistence (or détente).	792-802, 824-828
D. Postwar decolonization and the emergence of powerful nationalist movements in Asia,	735-736, 745,
Africa, and the Middle East led both sides in the Cold War to seek allies among new nations,	776-777, 824-825,
many of which remained nonaligned.	828, 840, 841
E. Cold War competition extended to Latin America, where the U.S. supported non-	777, 792-793
Communist regimes that had varying levels of commitment to democracy.	111,172-175
8.1.II. Cold War policies led to public debates over the power of the federal	747-751, 760-government and acceptable means for pursuing international and domestic goals while	761, 775, 777, protecting civil liberties. (NAT-3.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-2.0)
protecting eivil nocities. (NAT-5.0) (OLO-1.0) (WOR-2.0)	779, 796, 798-800, 802-804,
	810-811, 825-
	826, 831, 832,
	839-840
A. Americans debated policies and methods designed to expose suspected communists within	747-749, 750-751, the United States even as both parties supported the broader strategy of containing	775 communism.
B. Although anticommunist foreign policy faced little domestic opposition in previous years,	747, 798-800, the Vietnam War inspired sizable and passionate antiwar protests that became more	802-804, 810-811, numerous as the war escalated, and sometimes led to violence.	825-826
C. Americans debated the merits of a large nuclear arsenal, the military-industrial complex,	760-761, 779, and the appropriate power of the executive branch in conducting foreign and military policy.	796, 799-800, 829
D. Ideological, military, and economic concerns shaped U.S. involvement in the Middle East,	777,831,832, with several oil crises in the region eventually sparking attempts at creating a national	839-840 energy policy.
Key Concept 8.2: New movements for civil rights and liberal efforts to expand the role of gov	ernment generated a range of political and cultural responses.
8.2.1. Seeking to fulfill Reconstruction-era promises, civil rights activists and political	715, 744, 772-leaders achieved some legal and political successes in ending segregation, although	774, 786-791, progress toward racial equality was slow. (NAT-1.0) (NAT-2.0) (NAT-4.0) (POL-2.0)	803-805
A. During and after World War II, civil rights activists and leaders, most notably Martin	715, 772-774,
Luther King Jr., combatted racial discrimination utilizing a variety of strategies, including	786-791,803 legal challenges, direct action, and nonviolent protest tactics.
B. The three branches of the federal government used measures including desegregation of	715, 744, 772-
the armed services, Brown v. Board of Education , and the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to promote	773, 786-788
greater racial equality.	7.75, 700 700
C. Continuing resistance slowed efforts at desegregation, sparking social and political unrest	772-773, 787-791, across the nation. Debates among civil rights activists over the efficacy of nonviolence	803-805
increased after 1965.	303 303
8.2.II. Responding to social conditions and the African American civil rights	754-755, 762-766, movement, a variety of movements emerged that focused on issues of identity, social	770-771, 784, justice, and the environment. (NAT-4.0) (POL-2.0) (CUL-3.0) (CUL-4.0) (GEO-1.0)	813-823
social equality.	017 021
A. Feminist and gay and lesbian activists mobilized behind claims for legal, economic, and	817-821

B. Latino, American Indian, and Asian American movements continued to demand social and economic equality and a redress of past injustices.	813-817
C. Despite an overall affluence in postwar America, advocates raised concerns about the prevalence and persistence of poverty as a national problem.	754-755, 762-765, 770-771, 784
D. Environmental problems and accidents led to a growing environmental movement that aimed to use legislative and public efforts to combat pollution and protect natural resources. The federal government established new environmental programs and regulations.	765-766, 821-823
8.2.III. Liberalism influenced postwar politics and court decisions, but it came under	783-786, 788, increasing attack from the left as well as from a resurgent conservative movement.	790-791, 793,
(POL-1.0) (POL-2.0) (POL-3.0)	796-800, 802,
(1 012 1.0) (1 012 2.0)
	803-805, 809-
	811, 815, 818,
	819-821, 827-
	834, 838-341,
	843-845
A. Liberalism, based on anticommunism abroad and a firm belief in the efficacy of government	784-786, 788, power to achieve social goals at home, reached a high point of political influence by the mid-	793, 796-799, 803
1960s.	175,170-177,005
B. Liberal ideas found expression in Lyndon Johnson's Great Society, which attempted to use	783-786, 815, federal legislation and programs to end racial discrimination, eliminate poverty, and address	821,828-829 other social issues. A series of Supreme Court decisions expanded civil rights and individual	021,020 027 liberties.
C. In the 1960s, conservatives challenged liberal laws and court decisions and perceived	804-805, 827, moral and cultural decline, seeking to limit the role of the federal government and enact more	828-829, assertive foreign policies.	020 027,
D. Some groups on the left also rejected liberal policies, arguing that political leaders did too	790-791, 799-800, little to transform the racial and economic status quo at home and pursued immoral policies	802, 804, 809-811
abroad.	, ,
E. Public confidence and trust in government's ability to solve social and economic problems	830-834, 838-341, declined in the 1970s in the wake of economic challenges, political scandals, and foreign	845 policy crises.
F. The 1970s saw growing clashes between conservatives and liberals over social and cultural	818,819-821, issues, the power of the federal government, race, and movements for greater individual	829, 832-834, rights.	843-844
Key Concept 8.3: Postwar economic and demographic changes had far-reaching consequences society, politics, and culture.	for American
8.3.1. Rapid economic and social changes in American society fostered a sense of	741-742, 754-optimism in the postwar years. (WXT-3.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0)	764, 771, 785, openment in the posewar years (WIII old) (NIIO 110) (NIIO 210)	842-844, 864-865
A. A burgeoning private sector, federal spending, the baby boom, and technological	754-764
developments helped spur economic growth.	1 24-104
B. As higher education opportunities and new technologies rapidly expanded, increasing	741-742, 754-755, social mobility encouraged the migration of the middle class to the suburbs and of many	763-764, 842-844
Americans to the South and West. The Sun Belt region emerged as a significant political and	103-104,042-044 economic force.
C. Immigrants from around the world sought access to the political, social, and economic	771, 785, 864-865 opportunities in the United States, especially after the passage of new immigration laws in 1965.
8.3.II. New demographic and social developments, along with anxieties over the Cold	744, 756-757,
War, changed U.S. culture and led to significant political and moral debates that	762, 765, 767-
sharply divided the nation. (POL-2.0) (CUL-1.0) (CUL-2.0) (CUL-3.0)	770, 798-799,
1 5	808-813, 817-
	•
	821, 842-845,
A. Mass culture became increasingly homogeneous in the postwar years, inspiring challenges	821, 842-845, 860, 866-867 744, 756-757,

to conformity by artists, intellectuals, and rebellious youth.	762, 765, 767- 770, 798-799
B. Feminists and young people who participated in the counterculture of the 1960s rejected many of the social, economic, and political values of their parents' generation, introduced greater informality into U.S. culture, and advocated changes in sexual norms.	808-813, 817-821
C. The rapid and substantial growth of evangelical Christian churches and organizations was accompanied by greater political and social activism on the part of religious conservatives.	842-845, 860, 866-867
PERIOD 9: 1980-Present
Key Concept 9.1: A newly ascendant conservative movement achieved several political and political and continued to strongly influence public discourse in the following decades.	licy goals during the 9.1.1. Conservative beliefs regarding the need for traditional social values and a	845-848, 857-
reduced role for government advanced in U.S. politics after 1980. (POL-1.0) (POL-2.0) (POL-3.0) (WXT-2.0)	858, 868-870, 988-879
A. Ronald Reagan's victory in the presidential election of 1980 represented an important milestone, allowing conservatives to enact significant tax cuts and continue the deregulation of many industries.	845-847
B. Conservatives argued that liberal programs were counterproductive in fighting poverty and stimulating economic growth. Some of their efforts to reduce the size and scope of government met with inertia and liberal opposition, as many programs remained popular with voters.	847-848, 858
C. Policy debates continued over free-trade agreements, the scope of the government social safety net, and calls to reform the U.S. financial system.	857-858, 868-870, 877-879
Key Concept 9.2: Moving into the 21st century, the nation experienced significant technologic demographic changes.	cal, economic, and 9.2.1. New developments in science and technology enhanced the economy and	831-832, 861-863 transformed society, while manufacturing decreased. (WXT-1.0) (WXT-2.0) (WXT-
A. Economic productivity increased as improvements in digital communications enabled	862-863
increased American participation in worldwide economic opportunities.	002-003
B. Technological innovations in computing, digital mobile technology, and the Internet transformed daily life, increased access to information, and led to new social behaviors and networks.	861-863
C. Employment increased in service sectors and decreased in manufacturing, and union membership declined.	831-832
D. Real wages stagnated for the working and middle class amid growing economic inequality.	832,861,862
9.2.II. The U.S. population continued to undergo demographic shifts that had	816-817, 842, significant cultural and political consequences. (NAT-4.0) (CUL-3.0) (MIG-1.0) (MIG-2.0)	863-867
A. After 1980, the political, economic, and cultural influence of the American South and West continued to increase as population shifted to those areas.	842
B. International migration from Latin America and Asia increased dramatically. The new immigrants affected U.S. culture in many ways and supplied the economy with an important labor force.	816-817, 864-865
C. Intense political and cultural debates continued over issues such as immigration policy, diversity, gender roles, and family structures.	863-867
Key Concept 9.3: The end of the Cold War and new challenges to U.S. leadership forced the new foreign policy and role in the world.	nation to redefine its 9.3.1. The Reagan administration promoted an interventionist foreign policy that	848-853, 859, continued in later administrations, even after the end of the Cold War. (WOR-2.0)	868, 872-875, 879
A. Reagan asserted U.S. opposition to communism through speeches, diplomatic efforts,	848-849, 850-851
limited military interventions, and a buildup of nuclear and conventional weapons.	040 051
B. Increased U.S. military spending, Reagan's diplomatic initiatives, and political changes and economic problems in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union were all important in ending the Cold War.	848-851

C. The end of the Cold War led to new diplomatic relationships but also new U.S. military and peacekeeping interventions, as well as continued debates over the appropriate use of American power in the world.	852-853, 859, 868, 872-875, 879
9.2.II. Following the attacks of September 11, 2001, U.S. foreign policy efforts focused	861-862, 867, on fighting terrorism around the world. (NAT-2.0) (NAT-3.0) (GEO-1.0) (WOR-2.0)	871-880
A. In the wake of attacks on the World Trade Center and the Pentagon, the United States launched military efforts against terrorism and lengthy, controversial conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq.	871-875, 878, 879
B. The war on terrorism sought to improve security within the United States but also raised questions about the protection of civil liberties and human rights.	872,879
C. Conflicts in the Middle East and concerns about climate change led to debates over U.S. dependence on fossil fuels and the impact of economic consumption on the environment.	867, 873-875, 879
D. Despite economic and foreign policy challenges, the United States continued as the world's leading superpower in the 21st century.	861-862, 872-880