Supporting Every Student, Every Day

Evidence-based solutions for dynamic teaching and meaningful student growth

McGraw Hill proudly offers evidence-based intervention and supplemental solutions for PreK–12 math and ELA to empower teachers to meet all students where they are with:

- Science-backed, time-tested lessons: While learning looks different now, our commitment to supporting educators and classrooms remains steadfast, rooted in trusted research and proven pedagogy.
- Personalized learning that builds self-efficacy: Individualized, adaptive pathways empower students to take ownership over their learning and goals.
- Data-driven decision-making: Actionable, just-in-time insights empower teachers to know who needs their attention and how to tailor their instruction and boost student achievement.

All kinds of learning—whole-class, small group, teacher-lead, and independent—happen in all kinds of places. It takes place before school, after school, in summer school, at home, and online, and it's taught by all kinds of educators. Let's empower them all to deliver high-quality instruction, wherever they are in their teaching journey, in any learning setting.

Transforming Education with Tiered Solutions

Meet and exceed achievement standards through differentiated instruction

Our tiered solutions integrate curriculum and professional learning to support student achievement. By combining equitable instruction with educator development, we help schools build and sustain effective MTSS and RTI frameworks. Strategic resource alignment across tiers ensures differentiated instruction, improving outcomes for all students.

Three Tier Instructional Model

TIER 1:

Students at or near grade-level proficiency

- Rigorous and evidence-based
- Preventative and proactive instruction
- Targeted supplemental instruction defined by assessed needs
- Flexible grouping and differentiation

TIER 2:

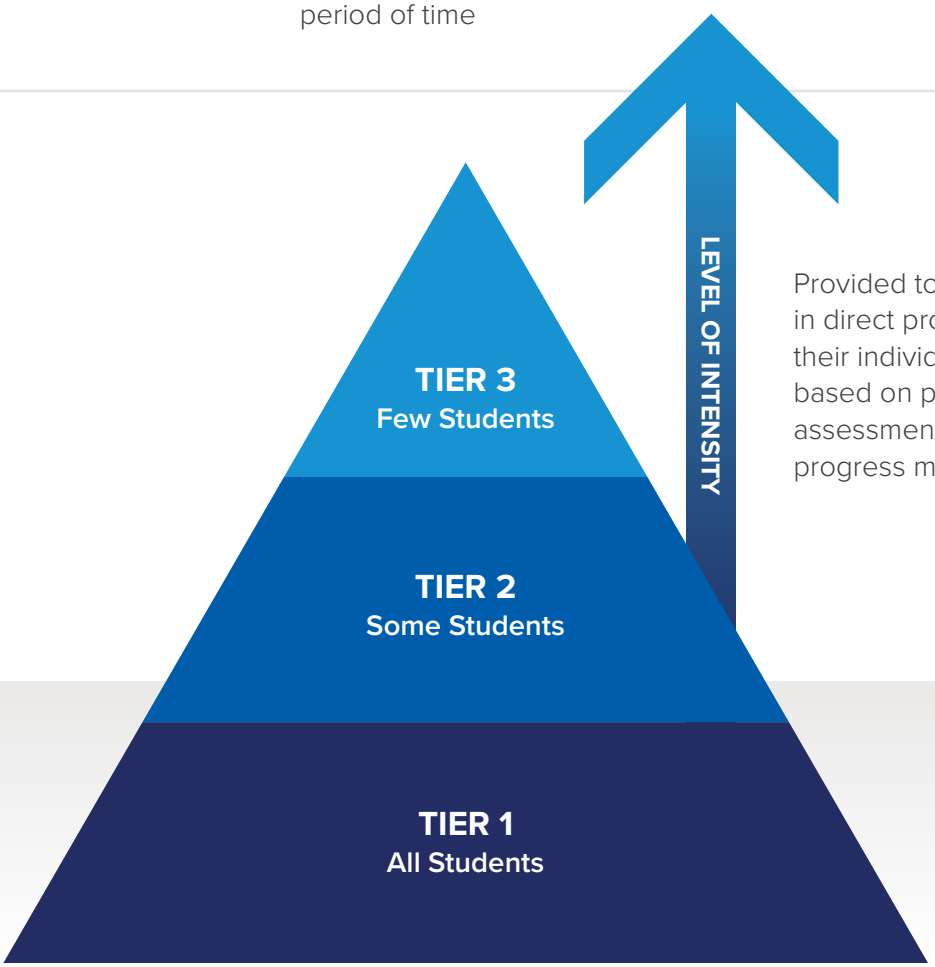
Students who require targeted support in addition to Tier 1 instruction

- High efficiency, rapid response
- Small-group differentiated instruction
- Systematic, targeted, and research-based intervention
- At least 30 minutes per day in addition to core instruction over a short period of time

TIER 3:

Students who require ongoing intensive intervention

- Higher intensity and longer duration
- Specialized educator to address individual student needs
- 60–120 minutes of daily instruction
- Instruction conducted outside the general education classroom



Provided to students in direct proportion to their individual needs, based on proficiency assessment and progress monitoring

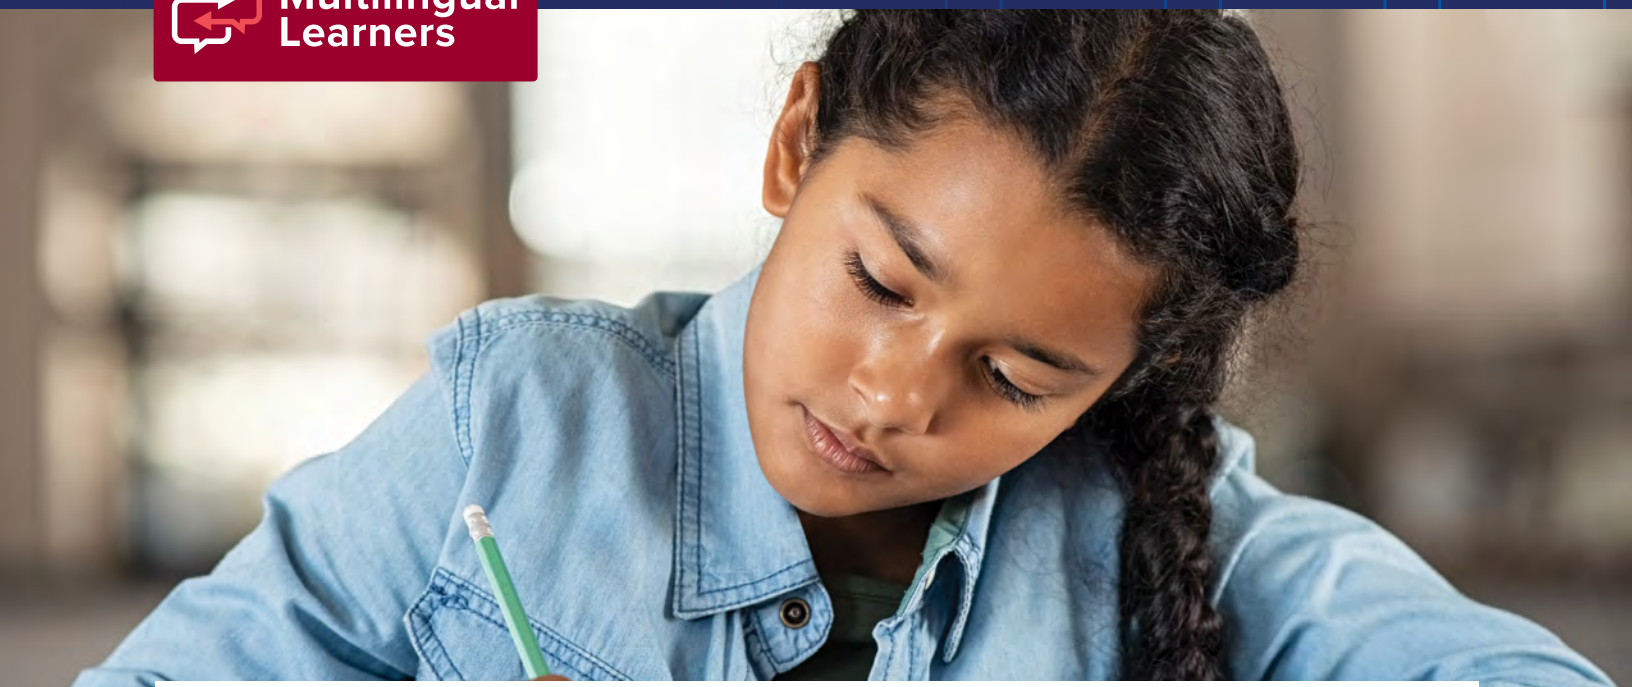
Multilingual Learners



Equitable Education for All

Empower multilingual learners to thrive in every aspect of their education journey

At McGraw Hill, we celebrate the rich diversity that multilingual learners (MLLs) bring to the classroom. Our portfolio is designed to support these students with resources that honor their unique linguistic and cultural backgrounds while accelerating their academic growth. Based on research across a wide range of disciplines, McGraw Hill has developed and applied a set of guiding principles to support MLLs as they acquire content knowledge and develop language skills.

McGraw Hill's Nine Guiding Principles to Support Multilingual Learners:

1. Provide Specialized Instruction
2. Cultivate Meaning
3. Teach Structure and Form
4. Develop Language in Context
5. Scaffold to Support Access
6. Foster Interaction
7. Create Affirming Cultural Spaces
8. Engage Home to Enrich Instruction
9. Promote Multilingualism

Literacy Programs Proven to Work

Evidence-based solutions transform students into highly skilled learners

Research fuels all that we do to improve learning outcomes. Decades of research have consistently revealed strong evidence of academic achievement when students are taught using evidence-based intervention programs. We've drawn upon decades of literacy research to help students grow as readers, writers, and communicators.

As research and knowledge continue to evolve, let's start thinking in terms of the Science of Literacy—a phrase that encompasses the Science of Reading, the Science of Writing, and Knowledge Building more broadly. We believe that all children can learn, and all teachers can succeed when provided with the right support and materials.

Closing Gaps. Unlocking Futures.

Intervention solutions built for Grades 6–12

For too many students, unfinished learning from previous grades is holding them back. The challenge is urgent: students in Grades 6–12 with achievement gaps often fall further behind because they struggle to engage with grade-level content across all subjects.

The solution is here.
McGraw Hill's intervention programs give schools the power to close gaps—fast—while respecting the unique needs of secondary students.

Accelerate Foundational Skills

Provide intensive, systematic instruction that catches students up quickly—with content that matches their maturity level.

Rebuild Confidence

Structured lessons and adaptive technology ensure students experience success every day, building self-efficacy and motivation.

Respect Their Development

Age-appropriate design keeps students engaged, while career-connected content helps them see the "why" behind what they're learning.

Empower Teachers

Easy-to-implement lessons and adaptive tools lighten teacher workloads while ensuring every student gets targeted support.

Learn more about how McGraw Hill can help your school close literacy gaps.
With the right intervention, they don't just catch up—they move forward with confidence, ready for a bright future ahead.
