Is a box just a box?
I asked the children of Green School.

“Look at this brown box.” I said to the children.
“Is it just a box? Or can it be a car?”

The children of Green School said, "It can be a car."
"We can make a car from the box."
Can the children do it?

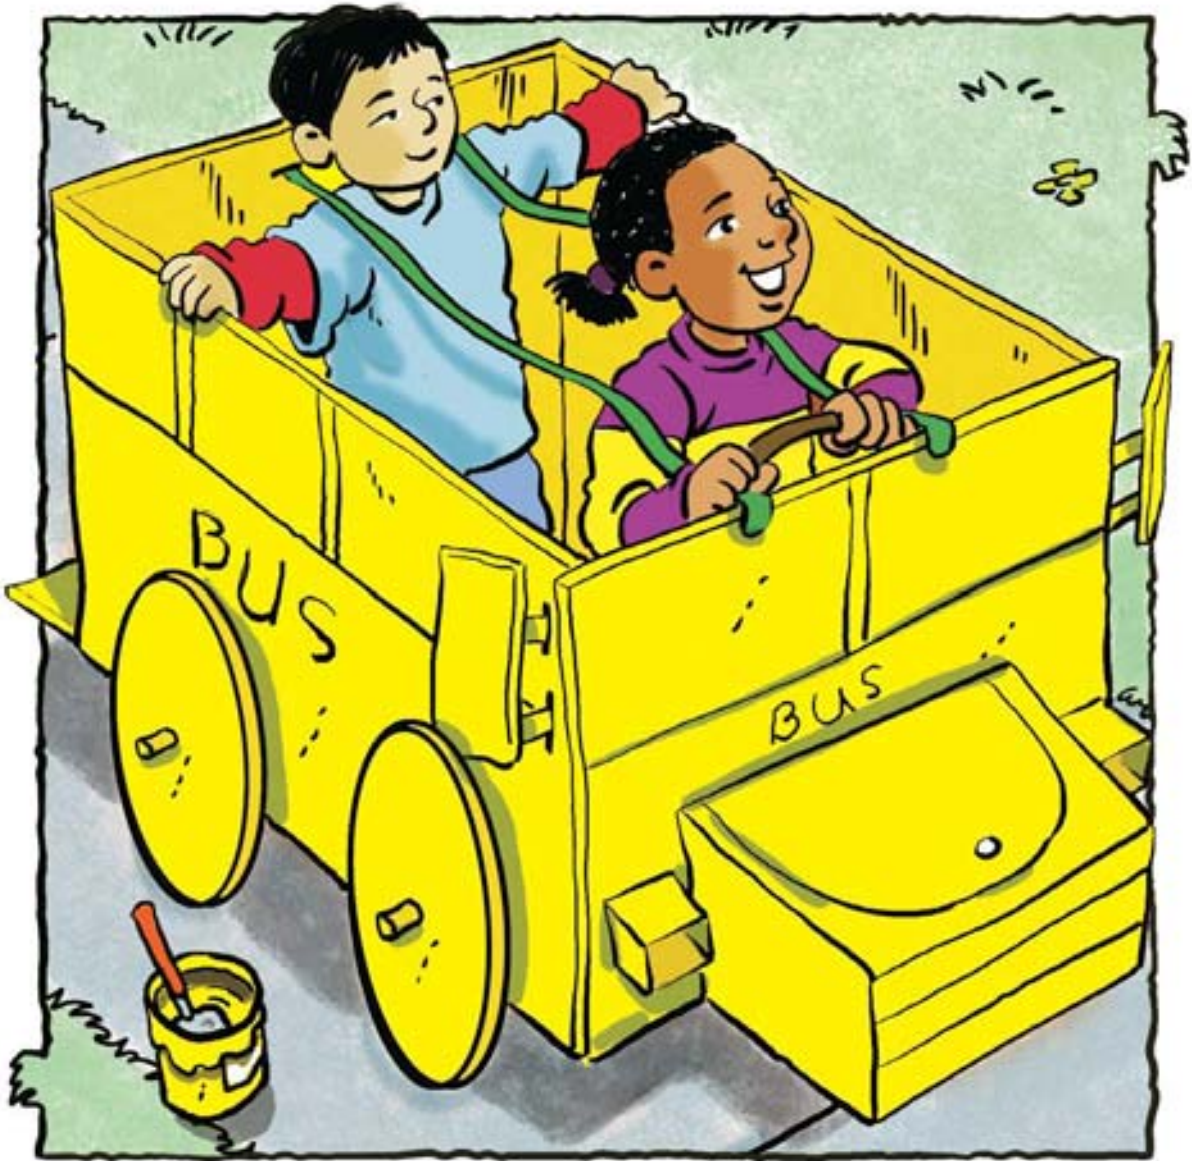

See the brown box?
The children can make a car from the box!
The children can make it go too.

Then I asked the children to look at this box.
“Can this box be a bus?” I asked.
“Or is it just a box?”

The children of Green School looked at the box.
“It can be a bus!” they said. “That box can be a bus.”

See the box?
The children can make a bus from the box.
It is yellow like a school bus.

“Look at the red box and the black box.”
“Look at the blue box too,” I said.
“Can they be a train?”

“A train?” asked the children.
They looked at the red box and the black box.
They looked at the blue box too.
“Yes, they can be a train,” said the children.

See the train?

See the red box, the black box, and the blue box?

The children did it!

“Look at this big, big box,” I said.
“Can this big box be a boat?”
“Or is it just a box?”

The children walked around the big box.
“It can be a boat!” they said.
Can they make a boat?

Yes! The children can make a boat!
“Can I ride in the boat?” I asked.

“No!” said the children of Green School.
“It is just a box!”
This water is cold.
